Church Farewell Honors Douglas Smith Family

Seventy friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Smith gathered at the Church of Christ Friday evening to bid the family farewell. Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Karen, Dougie and Byron will leave shortly to make their home at Kelowna, B.C.

Games and contests were enjoyed and Mrs. Mary Benoit of Nanton and Mrs. Jean Gardner favored the gathering with a number of vocal solos accompanied by Mrs. Vernie Budd. A reading, "The Old Fashioned Pair", given by Nettie Ware, was much enjoyed. Warden Budd was master of ceremonies for the evening.

Calvin Hollister, on behalf of those assembled presented the Smiths with a chiming mantel clock and expressed the regret of all in losing such fine neighbors. Bertha Webber, on behalf of the Candlelight Circle, presented Muriel with a lovely cup and saucer.

Lunch was served by the ladies to conclude the evening's program.

Decoration Day Observed By Legion Groups

The men and women who gave their lives in the last two World Wars were remembered last Sunday at Vulcan when members of the Vulcan Branch, Royal Canadian Legion held their annual Decoration Day service.

Officiating at the service was Legion Padre Rev. D. M. Sharpe and in his message to the group of ex-service men he paid tribute to those who did not return from overseas and claimed that in today's world "we are enjoying privileges we did not earn."

Wreaths were placed at graves in the Veterans Plot by Legion president Wally Franks and by Mrs. Loss Kuykendall of the Ladies Auxiliary, for president Mrs. Seno Degenstein, who was absent.

Work Begins On Senior Citizens' Home

Construction began Monday, Aug. 12, on the Alberta Government's Senior Citizens' Home on its Vulcan site between the golf course and baseball diamond.

In a recent release the Honorable F. C. Colborne, Minister of Public Works, announcement was given that Poole Construction had won the contract for the Home with a bid of $202,567. Other tenders received were Bird Construction—$203,298; Hashman Construction—$205,314; Kenwood Engineering Construction—$205,800.

About two dozen men are presently working on the Vulcan project and it is expected the building will be completed before the end of the year. Official opening is expected in the spring or 1964. The building is U-shaped in design with the two arms of the U containing living quarters, running away from the street front. The entrance, lounge and kitchen make up the south wall which faces the street.

Site for the Home was approved in February of this year and at a meeting held in January, a provisional Board of the Foundation (this one named the Marquis Foundation) was named. Members are Jack Dietz and Art Ulrich, representing the County; M. R. Morrison and Stan Scales, representing the Town of Vulcan; D. Pitcher, George Smith, J. Allon (Champion); Leon Coe, (Carmangay); R. O. Bertrand, (Milo); V. D. Culp, (Arrowwood); B. M. Stokes, (Lomond); secretary-treasurer is D. D. McQueen.

At a future date a permanent Board of Directors will be named to supervise the operation of the Home and accept applications for entry.

The Senior Citizens' Home will accommodate 50 elderly residents, the main stipulation being that they are in reasonably good health and do not require special nursing services. Each applicant is required to pay a monthly charge of $60 for accommodation in a double room or $65 in a single room.

Good Interest Shown

First Band Practice Sept. 9 26 Enrollments To Date

The Vulcan County Band should soon be a reality, according to members of the band committee who have been working quietly towards that objective all through the summer holidays.

Not all members of the executive have been contacted yet, but from reports received to date it would appear that there will be 40 to 50 enrollments for the junior band as well as a good nucleus for the senior band.

It was previously intended and announced that another executive meeting would be held before the first band practice on Monday, Sept. 9, but due to holidays and the harvesting operations getting into full swing it may be necessary to postpone the meeting until the evening of the first practice. This will necessitate contacting each member of the executive to get enrollments so that instruments can be arranged for. The secretary-treasurer, J. Lundy Findlay, has actually received 26 enrollments but has been advised of many more who will be attending but who have not yet completed enrollment forms.

It would help considerably if all those intending to join would get their enrollment forms completed and turned in. Members of the junior band can be from 9 to 99 years of age and indications are that about one-quarter of junior band members will be adults. Highest enrollment so far is four from one family.

Members enrolled for the senior band are nearly all adults, many of them being former bandmen who haven't played for years and who will require some time to get their lips in shape. There is already some speculation as to whether the senior band or the junior band will be the one ready for the first band concert.

No arrangements have yet been made for financing the bands, as it is felt that the first step is to get practices started and then, if the interest continues, the wholehearted support of the public can be expected. The executive committee has expressed its intention of starting a campaign for a "mile of dimes" during the winter months.

Former Editor Dies In B.C.

Word has been received here of the death recently of Louis A. Starck, at White Rock, B.C., after a lengthy illness. He had lived in Carmangay and district from 1907 to 1941.

Born in Devon, England in 1879 he came to Canada in 1901. Mr. Starck married Nellie E. S. Rowley at Carmangay in 1909 and they lived on their homestead west of town until moving to Carmangay in 1918. Here he had a machine agency before buying the newspaper business in 1920. He was owner and publisher of the Carmangay Sun, a weekly newspaper for 18 years and also owner of the Champion Chronicle for some years.

They moved to White Rock in 1941 and helped publish the first local weekly, The Semiahmoo Sun. This newspaper was published from several locations during the war years but in spite of many difficulties Mr. Starck maintained weekly publication.

In 1948 he opened a printing plant at White Rock and he was associated with the publication of the Mailand Echo, a weekly serving Whalley and White Rock, until his retirement in 1949.

Both he and Mrs. Starck were active members of Emmanuel Anglican Church at Carmangay and he also helped in the construction of Holy Trinity Church at White Rock.

He was predeceased by his wife in 1950 and had no near relatives in this country.

A member of Robert Burns Lodge, A.F. & A.M., Carmangay, Masonic funeral rites were held at Chapel Hill Funeral Parlor, White Rock, under the auspices of Joppa Lodge 112 A.F. & A.M., with interment in Surrey Centre Cemetery.

Big Grayling Wins Trophy For Glen Dahl

Glen Dahl, president of the Vulcan and District Fish & Game Association and member of the Calgary Hook and Hackle Club, put his fishing prowess to work up the Highwood last Sunday and came back with the trophy in the Calgary Hook and Hackle Clubs annual Fish Derby.

His prize winning catch was a 17½-inch grayling, taken with a Turnback Deerhead fly. This competition, open to fly fishermen only, ran from Longview west on the Highwood and nearest guess of the location of Glen's victory is around Camp 3. It was also the first grayling ever caught by Glen.

The trophy is one put up by Vulcan Fish & Game member Bill Lethby, during his residency in Calgary, where he was a charter member of the Calgary Hook and Hackle Club. Bill bewails the fact that he has never won his own trophy.

Bill Lethby, Bill Salvage, Montie Findlay and son Russell were other members of the Vulcan fly-fishing club who tried to raise a winner, settled for a batch of lesser-sized trout and fried potatoes. In the face of a feed such as this, being an also-ran isn't hard to take.

Max Kehr vs. Leggy Lynx

Max Kehr said it last Friday at his farm— "Doggone, I can run down and catch wild life on the road but I don't seem to be able to shoot anything up in the hills."

He was referring to the young lynx above, which he had just hogtied—almost—single-handedly and also to an unfortunate goose incident of a year or so ago.

Max and his nephew Duane spotted the lynx crossing the road into a field of Art Outforth's flax and, recalling that these are a protected species, Max decided to bring it back alive. It was practically no contest from the start. As it turned out the lynx was a young, half-starved member of last year's crop and out of her running element in the flax whereas Max was in his best farming fettle and finally spied his chance as his adversary headed through a fence. He grabbed two hind feet, bare-handed, and flung the lynx to the ground stunning it. This gave him time to put a tow rope on the hind quarters and he held his captive by the neck in the box of the truck, back to the farm.

After an attempted bout with the farm dogs the lynx was tethered to a tree and was offered a pork chop right off the family supper table which she devoured in one quick swallow. After a further feed of raw meat supplied by in-terested visitor Don Green and his wife Ann, they and the Kehr family watched as the lynx curled up like a tired pussycat and fell asleep. By the next morning the new-found friend had wriggled free of the rope on his hind legs and with only a noose on his neck, had taken to the tree branches. Her attitude was much more bel-ligerent and anyone coming close did so at their own risk.

The final chapter of the story came Sunday when men from the Calgary Zoo arrived to register the youngster in a several year people-watching course.

Ed Kehr tells of his homestead-ing father who, in earlier years, shot a lynx that was among his cattle. It was big enough so that when the hind legs were draped over his shoulders the head dragged on the ground. It is to be hoped Max doesn't stumble onto such a specimen for his next go-round.
